

Chris Robertson has been Vice President Legal & Business Integrity at LSE/ASX/JSE listed global mining company, South32 since 2015. In this role, Chris leads South32's Legal function supporting mining and processing operations across Australia, Africa, North and South America. Chris is also responsible for leading South32's Business Integrity function responsible for designing and managing South32's end-to-end business conduct framework including: Whistle Blower process and related reporting; Business Conduct Advisory Committee; key company policies including its Code of Business Conduct, Privacy Policy, and Anti- Bribery & Corruption Policy; investigations linked to Anti-Corruption, Competition, Fraud, Anti-Money Laundering, Trade Sanctions, Insider Trading and Privacy. Prior to his role at South32, Chris worked at global resources company BHP from 1990-2014 in a range of legal roles in both the mining and oil and gas sector. Chris is a graduate of the Law School of University of Melbourne and University of Tasmania.